DETAILED ACTION

Non-Final Rejection after RCE

Response to Amendment

1. Claims 18-20 and 23-26 are pending.
2. The objection to claims 18 and 20 is withdrawn in light of applicants amendment to the claims.
3. The rejection of claim 20 under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite is withdrawn in light of applicants amendment to the claim.
4. The rejection of claims 18-21 under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated Joyner et al. (US 4,483,969) is withdrawn in light of applicants amendment to the claims requiring the specified thickeners.
5. The rejection of claims 18-26 under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by Miracle et al. (US 5,576,282) is withdrawn in light of applicants amendment to the claims requiring the specified thickeners.
6. The rejection of claims 18-21 under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Joyner et al. (US 4,483,969) is maintained for the reasons recited in the previous office actions and further explained below.
7. The rejection of claims 18-26 under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Miracle et al. (US 5,576,282) is maintained for the reasons recited in the previous office actions and further explained below.

Response to Arguments

8. Applicant's arguments filed May 3, 2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicants urge that Joyner et al. and Miracle et al. fail to provide the required motivation to motivate one of ordinary skill in the art to add the thickening agent with the monofunctional end capped polyester as claimed.

Contrary to applicants arguments, Joyner et al. provide the required motivation to motivate one of ordinary skill in the art to add the thickening agent with the monofunctional end capped polyester as claimed. Specifically, Joyner et al. suggest end capped emulsifiable polyester wax in blends with various polyolefin, synthetic hydrocarbon and naturally occurring resins and rosins. See col.4,ln.45-65. Joyner et al. do not specifically teach the thickeners recited by the instant claims. However, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made to modify the teaching of Joyner et al. with a thickener chosen from the group comprising xanthan gum, and the recited polyacrylamides, because the broad teachings of Joyner et al. suggest end capped emulsifiable polyester wax in blends with various polyolefin, synthetic hydrocarbon and naturally occurring resins and rosins in general.

Also, contrary to applicants arguments, Miracle et al. provide the required motivation to motivate one of ordinary skill in the art to add the thickening agent with the monofunctional end capped polyester as claimed. Specifically, Miracle et al. teach detergent compositions comprising end capped emulsifiable polyester wax and further suggest including capping moieties which are especially effective in controlling molecular weight or altering the physical or surface active properties, which would encompass the broad category of thickeners. See col17,ln.15-20. Furthermore, Miracle et al. suggest the addition of paraffin, vinyl monomers of acrylic acid and carboxy methyl cellulose. See col.19,ln.54; col.20,ln.58; and col. Miracle et al. do not teach the specific thickeners recited by the instant claims. However, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made to modify the teaching of Miracle et al. with a thickener chosen from the group comprising xanthan gum, and the recited polyacrylamides, because the broad teachings of Miracle et al. suggest gel detergent compositions comprising end capped emulsifiable polyester wax and further suggest the utility of moieties which are especially effective in controlling molecular weight or altering the physical or surface active properties, which would encompass the broad category of thickeners in general. Furthermore, xanthan gum is well known in the art for its use as thickener, stabilizer, emulsifier and foaming agent. See <http://www.lsbu.ac.uk/water/hyxan.html> for common knowledge known in the art.
